Chinese Proverbs.
A few of the Chinese proverbs may show the character of the people, and their way of thinking better than any mere description.
A wise man adapts himself to circumstances, as water shapes itself to the vessel that contains it.
Misfortune issues out where disease enters in—the mouth.
The error of one moment becomes the sorrow of a whole life time.
Disease may be cured, but not destiny.
A vacant mind is open to all suggestions, as the hollow mountain retains all.

Who pursues the stag regards not harm.
If the roots to left the grass will grow again. This is the reason given for exterminating a traitor's family.
The gens cannot be, even when they are in friction, nor the man perfected without trials.
A wise man forgets old grudges.
Riches come before poverty than poverty after riches.
A bird can roost but on one branch.
A horse can drink no more than it fills from the river. Enough is as good as a feast.
When the pot is dry the fumes will be seen. When the accounts are settled the profits will appear.
Who swallows greed can chew but little.
Applied to learning, it means that if you cannot strip two skins off one cow.

Who wishes to rise in the world should will his ambition with the force of humanity.
The gods cannot help a man who has no opportunity.
Dogs will before you are thirsty. He prepared against contingencies.
The full stomach comprehends the will of hunger.
Eggs are close things, but the chicks come out at last. Murder will out.
To add fuel to smoke is the sure way to disclose when the subject is aforesaid.
Who aims at excellence will be above mediocrity, who aims at mediocrity will fall short of it.
To win a cat and lose a cow. Consequences of litigation.
I will now try my porcelain bowl against her earthen dish. Said in contempt.
He who talks with pain will eat with pleasure.
Borrowed money makes time short, working for others makes it long.
Those who cannot sometimes be deaf are unfit to rule.
Early repentance makes a lazy game.
Large fowls will not eat small grain.
Great mandarins are not content with small titles.
The best thing is to be respected, and the next to be loved; it is bad to be hated, but worse still to be despised.
The poor cannot contend with the rich, nor the rich with the powerful.
A man's words are like an arrow, straight to the mark; a woman's is like a broken fan.
One lash to a good horse; one word to a wise man.
Let every man sweep the snow from before his own door, and not try himself against the frost on his neighbor's.

Though the life of a man be short of a hundred years, he gives himself as much pain and anxiety as if he were to live a thousand.
By nature all men are alike; but by education widely different.

What a Woman Must Be.
BY KATE THORNE.
It is expected that all women shall be handsome, or shall think they are, which amounts to about the same thing, so far as their own satisfaction is concerned.
It is allowed that looking glasses were invented especially for women. It is a matter of course that a woman should look in the glass everywhere, and on all occasions. She is obliged to do so to see if her fizzes are right, and her hat is on true, and her necktie adjusted according to the last fashion plate in Le Bon Ton.

It is a sort of moral obligation which a woman owes to society to look just as pretty as she can. If she be lean, she must powder. If she has no hair, she must buy some. If her teeth are gone the way of all mankind goes and blessings, she must patronize the dentist. If she be fat, she must look well to her corset strings and be sure that they can stand the pressure. And she must avoid sugar, and starch, and potatoes, and eat margarine, sometimes known as butter, and she must walk ten miles a day and rise with the lark.

If she has a big foot, she must squeeze it into a small shoe, and assure the peering shopman, who is making super-human endeavors to button it on, that it is really a woman too large, and will be so dreadfully loose as soon as it is worn a little while. To be sure, she must always continue to look young. An unmarried woman never gets above twenty-five. We suppose it is really no crime to grow old, but a woman who acts toward a single woman as if it were.

A woman is expected to wear a smile, and like the immortal Mark Twain, to be cheerful under all circumstances. No matter if her shoes pinch her toes, and her corset strings are dragging her sick into her stomach, and she feels conscious that that odious Miss Brown is telling that odious Miss Jones all about how she dies her hair, she must wear a smiling countenance; for, if she frowns, she will make wrinkles, and wrinkles will remain how she dies her hair, she must wear a smiling countenance; for, if she frowns, she will make wrinkles, and wrinkles will remain how she dies her hair, she must wear a smiling countenance; for, if she frowns, she will make wrinkles, and wrinkles will remain

she must admire the babies and cry over the friends of her friends. She must give all credit of a piece of silk dress to her mother, and she must always be ready to help get up a church fair. She must learn all the new stiches in embroidery. She must point some pauses and some lines on some plaques. She must play a little. She must not meet the breath of the young man who has an income of five hundred dollars, and she must never confess to an appetite. She must always have white hands and clean collar, and orderly hair, and be tidy about her best buttons.

She must be wise as a serpent, and harmless as a dove, and like Cesar's wife, above suspicion. In return, some man will marry her and allow her to darn his stockings, and keep his buttons in their place, and fetch his slippers, and cook his dinner, and wash his shirts, and nurse his children, and—she forbear.

Does not every wife dream that she would? And who would not be a woman?

Police Note.
Last Sunday at Mr. T. F. Hudson's, the great hay and carp man, who is perhaps better known than any farmer in the State, we noticed that one DeWitt, seemed to be skinning off the hands. Mr. H. called the little fellow to him and showed us how he was skinning off the hands of his hands was coming off in flakes and a new skin appearing underneath. He explained that several years ago the little fellow, who is now a farmer, had been badly poisoned with poison oak, and every spring he broke out and suffered greatly. He had applied every known remedy, but to no purpose. He had consulted physicians to attend him, but with no avail. "In fact," Mr. Hudson continued, "I seemed like to get in the way of a poison oak which would cause the eruptions to break out afresh. After trying everything else, I read in the Boston Watchman a notice about the S. S. S. blood medicine. I determined to try that also, but must confess I had been cured by the S. S. S. blood medicine. I believe that it will cure all skin eruptions, and give good blood, and its effect on DeWitt proves it. There are a great many sufferers from poison oak in the country, and to me I am a happy man, and I am a great improvement. It is not only a certain cure, but seems to put new life into one."

This is only one of the numerous cures of S. S. S. that has reached us, and we publish it as information to those who are suffering with poison oak, and their system, it matters not what source it comes. This discovery is regarded to be the effect of poison oak is of great importance, as it gives a certain remedy for a common and aggravating affliction, for which no permanent cure has been known. The S. S. S. is certainly the king of blood medicine, and is as harmless as a common article of food. It is a blood from the system—Allen's Blood-Purifier, April 30.

The Herald-Examiner List.
We wish every reader of the HERALD to distinctly understand that, the OFFICE DISTRIBUTION TO SUBSCRIBERS will certainly take place sometime this year, but at the present time the date cannot be positively fixed. There will be more than $1,000 worth of glass distributed, ranging in value from $1.50 to $2.00, each paper, and each one subscriber will be entitled to a premium. There will be no blanks, each will get something, and many will get valuable presents.

Do not forget. The only persons who actually pay for, or new subscribers, we say our subscribers, because we are not receiving any subscriptions on credit. We cannot afford to do a credit business. Our contracts must be paid weekly, the other necessary expense to conduct a newspaper demand prompt cash, hence the absolute necessity of prompt payment by all.

Remember: Before the close of 1886 our distribution will actually take place. It is a matter of course that a woman should look in the glass everywhere, and on all occasions. She is obliged to do so to see if her fizzes are right, and her hat is on true, and her necktie adjusted according to the last fashion plate in Le Bon Ton.

AGRICULTURE.
The cotton and corn outlook of Alabama is reported as being discouraging. In Texas the wheat crop averages generally much more than many years previous. Cotton, except in the drought belt, is in fine condition, and exports during the last two weeks in better than former times, as it had been without export.

Finally I was induced to use B. R. H. which would be the best of Kentucky, and continue to use it until the latter part of April. The effective discharge decreased, and the discharge of matter became profuse and more offensive. I have tried them all, but B. R. H. is the best. I have tried them all, but B. R. H. is the best. I have tried them all, but B. R. H. is the best.

THE CROFTON PRICE CURRENT.
The average in corn is 75,000,000, and that the production will average a fairly good crop. The stock men of Colorado report that the Arkansas Valley stock is very favorable. In the fall water and grain being abundant. In Iowa the damage to corn and grass on account of the drought cannot be estimated. The corn crop of Illinois is not so well as in former years. The drought still continues. In Kentucky the average crop is good.

WHEAT MOVEMENT.
TOLSON, July 31.—The movement of wheat to this port so early in the season is unprecedented. The receipts are averaging an average of four hundred cars daily for the past five days. There is a scarcity of currency for handling the wheat, even on the part of the banks. The banks here do not seem to have provided for such an early movement. One of the heaviest grain dealers here was compelled to hand a consignment of twenty-four hours in consequence. It is thought the difficulty will be promptly remedied within a few days, and the movement by the first of August, will be practically within the control of the shippers. No increase in price is looked for, but at the same time there will be no decrease of the present value.

What Can Be Done?
By trying again and keeping up courage many things can be accomplished which seem impossible. Hundreds of helpless cases of Kidney and Liver troubles, Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Griffin & Bros., Hartford, Ky.

The world is full of shame, but there is no shame about White's Cream. A preparation intended for the benefit of children suffering with skin eruptions, and for the relief of the mother. It is largely used and the good it has accomplished cannot be estimated. Look to the health of your children, rid them of worms by using White's Cream Vermifuge.

It is a serious mistake not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies within our power. If you have a friend suffering with Pile, whether in his ear that Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment will only alleviate, but positively cure. We urge that you will not stand upon the order of his going to bed, but get him the Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment.
